SIX HUNDRED PRESENT AT TESTIMONIAL TO C. C. RICHARDS

Charles C. Richards, whose resignation as first counselor to President T. B. Evans of the Ogden stake, tendered to the stake president over a year ago, was recently accepted, was the honored guest of the stake last night at a social given in Weber academy. Elder Richards was made a member of the Ogden stake presidency in July, 1908, when the stake was organized, but after seven years years of service in the position, in addition to business affairs, it became apparent that his health was being broken by the double burden and his resignation was tendered to President Evans shortly after the opening of the year 1915. At the request of his superior officer, however, Elder Richards continued in active service until about six weeks ago.

The social last night was an eloquent tribute to the love and respect in which the retiring counselor is held in the Ogden stake, more than six hundred stake and ward officers, teachers and members, a large number of whom had been active in arranging for the event, being in attendance. Both the large academy study hall and auditorium were utilized for the party, a program of speeches and music being carried out and refreshments served in the study hall and a dance being held in the auditorium.

William M. McKay, stake superintendent of Sunday schools, acted as chairman of the evening and conducted the program in the assembly hall. This was opened by the singing of "Kind Words Are Sweet Tones of the Heart," by Miss Ruth Groesbeck, with chorus by the assembly. Prayer was offered by Joseph Storey and Miss Mary Fisher and Marcellus Smith then favored the gathering with a beautifully played violin duet and encore. The chairman, in a brief talk, stated the purpose of the gathering and welcomed the assembled, fellow workers and friends of Elder Richards to enjoy the pleasures of the evening.

Testimonial is Read.
Following the address of welcome, Thomas Clarke, representing the high council of the stake, read the following testimonial to the retiring member of the presidency:

"In the daily routine of life, the multitude of details often cover from our sight things of greater importance. We are so apt to lose sight of the great things and color all things alike. Great events are passing and little note is being taken of them. Great men move among us and only time brings a just appreciation of their worth—perhaps too late for them to hear; and while we who have associated with President Richards during his sojourn as first counselor in the stake presidency of the Ogden stake, undoubtedly appreciate the value of his good work, we may have been rather tardy in expressing that appreciation for the work he has accomplished. Many times has he counseled and advised and given instruction in the way of life, and strong has been his testimony in the truthfulness of the work in which we are engaged. It is well that we should appreciate in action worthy of his true greatness, but it would still be better were we to carry the noble example of his life in a firmer devotion to the right. Inasmuch as our association with Brother Richards has been in connection with the Ogden stake work, we would like to express a few of the things that he has accomplished."

"In the winter of 1907 and 1908, the movement which resulted in reviving and setting to work the various Priesthood Quorums in the church, had its inception in Ogden—then the Weber Stake. Apostle David O. McKay was at the head; the outlines had been prepared by the committee, under his direction and supervision, and the movement was ready to be launched, as a test, and if it survived, (as it was demonstrated to be successful and profitable) it was to be carried into the other stakes in the church."

"At the quarterly conference of the Weber Stake, held on the third Sunday in January, 1908, four of the aged and senior members of the High Council were honorably released and four alternate members selected to fill the vacancies occasioned by the four releases and the consequent promotion of the other members. Charles C. Richards was selected, sustained and set apart as one of the new alternate members. When the new outlines were submitted to the Presidency of the Stake, the High Council was divided into six committees to supervise the six quorums. Upon the recommendation of the chairman of each of the six committees, with one other was chosen as a supervising committee and Brother Richards was selected as its chairman. This committee laid out and executed the campaign which made the new priesthood work such a success that it was adopted throughout the entire church."

"In July 1908 the Weber Stake was divided and Brother Richards was selected and set apart to act as first counselor to President Thomas B. Evans in the Ogden Stake Presidency; in this appointment he was given charge of what we call 'Division One' work which includes supervision of the preparation and keeping of the records, rolls, reports and statistics; the establishment and maintenance of the library; the rendition of the music, singing and marching; and, generally, the supervision of everything outside of the service known as the 'Class Work.'"

"In keeping with the work of his division, that of supervising the keeping of records, Brother Richards introduced a uniform system of record making, including the records of stake boards, ward associations, and Priesthood quorums, all of which were supervised by stake secretaries under his direction. This system called for something else. If we have uniform records we must have a uniform order of business, and under the present system of keeping the records, rolls and reports each secretary's work is already printed in blanks and so simplified that even the most humble of our secretaries can no go astray. By this arrangement the order of business of each of the Priesthood and auxiliary organizations is conducted in the same manner in each ward in the stake."

"In the year of 1911 all of the records of the Ogden Stake were destroyed in the Eccles building fire. Brother Richards immediately set about and arranged plans whereby a history of all of the proceedings in the Ogden Stake since its organization might be obtained in lieu of the destroyed records, and receiving an appropriation for the first presidency for this purpose, the work has been carried out so that at the present time we have a complete history of what has transpired in the Ogden Stake, compiled from records kept by the different Priesthood and auxiliary organizations of the wards."

"Another system that he has been successful in getting started is in the creation and operation of ward libraries. A committee of librarians was appointed through the efforts of which all of the librarians of the various organizations in the wards have arranged lists of their books and submitted them to the ward librarians who, when a call is made for a certain book, can immediately refer to the organization which has the particular book required."

"There are undoubtedly a great many things that Brother Richards has accomplished in the Ogden Stake which none but he and our Father in Heaven know the author of. It comes to each of us at times to catch glimpses of higher and better things in life and, under the spell of the momentary inspiration, doubt and failure disappear. We lift our dead selves to a higher plane; we breathe the purer air of a sweeter and a nobler existence, and while in this exalted state, we are prompted by the Spirit of our Lord and Master and many suggestions for the carrying out of His work are made to us. Living as he has lived, Brother Richards has experienced this sweet influence and suggestions have been made to him which we know have been carried out. We know of his loyalty, his integrity and his unwavering devotion to the cause of Christ, and under the influence of the Spirit he has moved unflinchingly and unerringly to the accomplishment of his ideals. While we as a people are undoubtedly receiving the benefit of many of the suggestions that have been made through him, his modesty will prevent us ever hearing of them."

"For the past two years and more his health has been failing, and, realizing the importance of this work and fearing that he has not been able to devote the time and attention that should be given to it by one holding the position which he held, and at the same time attend to his professional duties, he requested that he be released from his position some fifteen months ago. President Evans was loath to take action, hoping against hope that Brother Richards would maintain his health and still be able to continue in the work."

"Life is marked by its eventful milestones, and we trust that the memory of his association with us in the Ogden Stake will be a milestone, bringing moments of sweet reflection to the life of Brother Richards, as it undoubtedly will bring to us; an oasis in the desert; its distant green quickening the weakened heart, bringing back the memory of the life and love of those who together walked hand in hand in the sweet services of the Master."

Address By T. B. Evans.
The testimonial of the high council was endorsed by Stake President Thomas B. Evans, in the following words:

"I want to bear my testimony to the fact that during all of the time that President Richards has served as a member of the Ogden Stake Presidency, he has labored to my certain knowledge for the uplift and salvation of his fellows. He has tried to fill his position with dignity and in kindness, in a manner that has blessed and will bless the people."

"Our Lord and Master, when speaking of his true disciples, said: 'By their fruits ye shall know them.' We shall know President Richards by his fruits; and I desire, at this time, to express to President Charles C. Richards my deep appreciation for the splendid work accomplished by him and my heart-felt thanks and gratitude for the splendid leadership that he has displayed while serving in the Ogden Stake Presidency; and in the same spirit of admiration and gratitude I wish in particular to mention the magnificent spirit, the indomitable courage and dogged tenacity that he has displayed while endeavoring to establish the Ogden Stake policies and the principles of life and salvation among the people."

"So I say, God bless President Richards; may his life be long upon the land; may his wife and children also be blessed with vigor of body and mind, and may they, with us, continue to the end, so that we may enjoy the great privilege of entering into the presence and glory of our God. This is my prayer in the name of Jesus, Amen."

From First Presidency.
After these remarks were concluded, a solo was pleasingly sung by Miss Groesbeck and the following letter from the first presidency of the church was then read:

"Salt Lake City, Utah, May 8th, 1916.
"Prest. Thomas B. Evans, Ogden Stake of Zion. Dear Brother:—Learning that the authorities of the Ogden Stake of Zion are about to hold with the Saints a social meeting in honor of Elder C. C. Richards, who has tendered his resignation as first counselor in the Stake Presidency on account of pressing personal business affairs, we hereby desire to express our approval of the movement projected, and join heartily in appreciation of the faithful and able service rendered by Brother Richards during the long period in which he acted as your counselor, and for many years previously in Weber County in both civil and ecclesiastical affairs. We deeply regret the necessity for his retirement from the Stake Presidency, but recognizing the need of his attention to legal business interests, we wish him abundant success therein, and hope and pray for a continuation of the Divine blessings upon him and his family, and the love and confidence of the people whom he has served so long, and which we entertain for him as a worthy son of a noble father in Israel. Your Brethren, (Signed) Joseph F. Smith, Anthon H. Lund, Charles W. Penrose, First Presidency."

A solo, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," by William S. Wright, next gave pleasure to the assembly and was followed by the presentation to Elder Richards of a handsome gold pocket watch, by High Counselor Timothy C. Hoyt. The job was a token of regard from the stake officers. Elder Richards was deeply moved by this evidence of the esteem in which he was held by his fellow stake workers.

Expressions of Thankfulness.

President Richards in accepting the beautiful watch job and expressions of gratitude, thanked his friends and associates for the magnificent tribute they had paid him, and assured them that he would never forget the pleasant years of service rendered with them. He paid a high tribute to Apostle David O. McKay, to Presidents Thomas B. Evans and Thomas E. McKay, the members of the High Council, the Bishops of the several wards, the stake superintendents and stake boards, for their untiring devotion and unselfish service. He said he knew them personally. That he had helped select all of the stake workers, but his associates in the Presidency, and to install them in office, and had not only kind words to say to them, but kind words to speak of them, and urged those present to always speak well of each other. Those men and women are of the best people on earth and are worthy of your support, your confidence and your prayers. If you will be loyal to them and assist them when requested to do so they will keep the Ogden stake in the front ranks, and the Lord will bless you for your efforts.

He said that he had tried to do his duty, to render the service required and to be a help to his associates and to the stake. His strength had failed, however, he had not been able to stand the strain and so, for a year past, he had endeavored to retire from the position and make place for a younger and stronger man, just as capable and willing as he has been to carry the work along. He hoped it would be understood that he deeply appreciated the splendid tribute and that he would remember it as long as he lives.

Closing Address.
Apostle David O. McKay, in the closing talk, expressed his personal regard for the guest of honor as a friend, citizen and church, in sentiments similar to those of President Evans and Elder Clarke.

Dancing in the auditorium commenced immediately after the conclusion of the program and continued until 11:30 o'clock, excellent music being furnished by a large orchestra, under the direction of Prof. E. W. Nichols. During the same period of time, ice cream, cake and other refreshments was served in the assembly hall by a large committee of stake board members and Elder Richards received the personal good wishes of the majority of the people at the party.

The affair was declared to have been one of the most successful ever held in the stake.

WRIGHTS PLAN CHANGE IN THE HOURLY SALES

Will Offer All Morning Specials From 9 to 12 Instead of Separate Hours.

While we are free to admit that the morning sales on Saturday are for the express purpose of stimulating early shopping, still we do not desire to cause our customers inconvenience in order to take advantage of them. Heretofore the best items have been those offered from 9 to 10 o'clock, 10 to 11 o'clock and 11 to 12. But there have been so many requests that these sales be offered for a longer time, that we have decided to try this experiment.

All of the items which have been offered during the three morning hours separately, will be offered from 9 o'clock till noon. This will enable all to share these savings, as they may come any time between 9 and 12 o'clock.

A complete list of the attractions for tomorrow are printed in another part of this paper. Bulletins will also be found in all departments which give a list of tomorrow's sales.
